

A licensee who renews on or before the first day of their designated renewal month by submitting a renewal application and $200 renewal fee, but does not submit current financial information, may be granted an extension of time for filing same until for a period of ninety days, but no longer. The board considers "current financial information" as being no more than one year old, prepared by a CPA, and submitted as required by the Board. If the required financial information is not received by the end of the ninety-day extension period, the applicant will be required to pay a $50 late penalty prior to renewing the license. All licensees not holding a current license for more than one year must file a new application for license.
